

FAMILY, FOOD & FLYING

Fred Hunt took care of his family. He loved to cook and entertain them and his many friends. All were welcome at the Hunt home where he was known as Uncle Fred. Three special recipes were included with his obituary: El Freddo's salad dressing, El Freddo's slaw, and Freddy Burgers. Fred also had a passion for flying that he learned when he left college to volunteer for the Naval Aviator training program in 1943. After World War II, he returned to the University of Arkansas and graduated after studying architecture and business. He shared his love of flying with his beloved wife, Cary, who predeceased him in 2018, and was also an accomplished pilot. Fred was a long-time, generous church member who enjoyed the back rows of our sanctuary. Fred showed how much he valued the ministries of our church, by including the church in his estate so that his giving could extend past his lifetime. He was also very generous with his resources to Presbyterian Village. Thanks be to God for the life of Fred Hunt.
